Dear Mr. Jordan,

I am writing in response to the complaint recently made in MUR 5795 about my campaign for Congress of six years ago. The alleged conversation and events in that complaint are false. There was a very small amount of cash in our campaign (only about $4,000.00) and I knew little about how much came in, who gave it or it's reporting. This complaint, it is clear, is based on statements by a person who admitted in the same deposition to recently forging 30 signatures on election forms. There is certainly a credibility issue to his statements. Please see the list below for a summary of all contributions to our campaign.

Candidate Contributions	$ 17,568
Candidate Loans to campaign	$323,500
Individual Donations (checks)	$133,527
Individual Donations (cash)	$ 4,005

In this unsuccessful campaign from 2000, it is the matter of record that I contributed in excess of $340,000 (a painful expensive memory now rekindled!!!) of the total we spent of about $477,000. There is no reason for me or anyone else contributing these sums to do what was suggested. They as I would have just written another check. If we have fault it may have been not more closely monitoring the small amount of cash which came in and and having clear documentation of same.

We ran a good, hard, honest campaign six years ago. We believe this complaint, which is without proof, should be given no credence or additional time. If we can provide additional help or information not listed here or in our campaign filings please let us know. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Randy D. Walter
